denatured lines

torpor crash a rumored beam of blue ice thought spores my sodden head frogged clogging mind-scapes some balls sized a hairbreadth escorted to justice in lieu of de-neutered a queen bee a bat murder journal-ed cathedral lie hedge torsos a ghost sky misshaped in thaw wedged between his incisors war missives the language of buttons rephrased defense tactics a dunce-capped tooth missing his crown passed on as rootless my denatured lines

Tomorrow's Leaf

in the predawn praying hush of silence left behind the old dream footprints & I a bed flat on my back cold winter night below the neon light a trembling flower deeply into the wet tundra a happy sun no homeless in the bird's womb stones slicing, slicing, me in half baby's breath spring buds into the morass of summer still so awake anywhere else day moon 'tween two sides of the river leaf boats drifting into nowhere to go a rain song watered roots on earth tomorrow's leaf

Magellan

map refolded another world's edge another longitude to draw onto waves further out the horizon on course the me on a boat with sails

Cloud Catcher

after chemo out of the car wash into the clouds adopting the pace of my father his father the river's slow bend when everything was everything half my life ago

bottom of the bucket list a stone with nowhere to skip names we are given names we take: Cloud Catcher winter shears holidays of deep winter ripping me stalled xmas cards Sirius dog star dawdles a quarter of pain memories metastasized stitched by pain knitted brow sheep not visiting my dreams oceans not plover shores sheep sheared synaptically
